n nacement that Confederate cotton bonds and "hipplasters" might soon have an increased muketable value, an enterprising shoemaker at Nashville, Tennessee, caused an advertisem mt to be inserted in the Banner to the effect that he was prepared to give seventy-five cents "in the dollar" for old, and fifty cents for new is no of Confederate money. The offer proved so tempting that the street in front of his store was crowded to excess on the following-morning. Old men and old women from every part of the surrounding country were on hand with carpet-bags and valises, containing paper representing thousands of dollars. The first man who entered the store had a parcel of some $200,000, and his utter astonishment may be better imagined than described when the audacions Crispin drew the pile toward him, and paid over to the owner one-half the amount in notes of precisely the same value and issue. For the reason that few men like to allow themselves to remain the only victims of such a large joke, the fun was continued for several days, much to the amusement of those who i. d been in the secret from the first.
